

Yearbook on International Arbitration and ADR

Volume VIII

Human rights, climate change, and other developments in international arbitration

This yearbook series explores recent trends in international arbitration and addresses them in scholarly debate. Volume VIII focuses on the growing impact of human rights in international arbitration and alternative dispute resolution (ADR) in the context of global business, corporate or sports law. Further topics include climate change, investment and antitrust disputes in addition to various individual questions of arbitration and mediation proceedings.

For this comprehensive collection – dedicated to Hubertus Schumacher in appreciation of his outstanding achievements in legal practice and academia – thirty-six experts from fifteen countries all over the world provide their in-depth analyses of current developments in international arbitration and ADR.
